W. S. S. CAMPAIGN IN LAWRENCE CO.

$150,000 IS ESTIMATED AMOUNT OF PLEDGES GIVEN IN THE COUNTY.

The W. S. S. campaign in Lawrence county last Friday was a success, although the quota was not reached. $405,000 was recognized as a hopelessly large quota for the county from the beginning, but no complaint was made, as it was understood to be based on population throughout the United States at the rate of $20 for each man, woman and child. Lawrence has no war industries to bring in large sums of money. The quota amounts to about 70 per cent of all the deposits in the three banks. It is nearly six times as large a quota as the last liberty bond assessment.

Most of the districts made a good showing, although there are some that can and should do better. The school house meetings were well attended and there will be only a small slacker list to report to Washington.

Time Extended.

A telegram received Saturday from headquarters extended the time of the drive a week to give the districts that fell down a chance to redeem themselves. Every one in this county that fell below $1000 should try to reach that figure. Let the chairman and trustees go after those who ought to increase the amount pledged.

Nearly all districts ran out of pledge cards at the meetings, because Washington did not furnish enough. Another supply is on the way. Most of the districts made lists of those that did not get cards and this was the proper course. Cards will be filled out accordingly.

Pledges About $150,000.

The returns are being tabulated. An estimate indicates that the total for Lawrence county may reach $150,000. This is purely an estimate, however. Full particulars will be published next week.

In some districts every grown person who was not too sick to attend was present at the meeting. A willing and patriotic spirit was manifested throughout the county. Everybody showed a desire to help.

Fred Vinson and J. Isralsky went to Mt. Pleasant, A. O. Carter and R. C. Simpson to Deephole Dock Jordan to Walbridge, to assist in the meetings.

Louise W. S. S. Meeting.

The court house in Louise was filled last Friday by citizens of the Louise Graded School district, who answered the call of the Government on the War Savings drive. Nearly all the stores were closed from two to four o'clock. Misses Marie and May Hale sat at the foot of the stairway and recorded the names of all who went into the meeting. Marshal C. C. Skaggs assisted them in getting the names.

The meeting was called to order by C. B. Bromley, chairman of the school district drive. He called upon Rev. W. A. Gaugh to open the meeting with prayer. Next came the singing of America, led by Rev. C. A. Bostwick.

Rev. H. O. Chambers was appointed secretary of the meeting. After a brief statement by the chair, Rev. Fred Shannon was presented and made an admirable address on "Our Country," proving that it means almost everything to human beings to have a country, especially one like the United States of America.

Prof. Kennison followed with a brief talk.

Then the real business of the meeting was taken up—that of getting the pledge cards signed for War Savings Stamps. A large number of cards had been turned in before the meeting by solicitors. After those present had signed, the names and amounts on all cards were read to the audience. The total was about $25,000.

Miss Maude Smith made a fine record as a solicitor. Others who did good work were F. M. Vinson, W. L. Ferguson, O. C. Atkins, F. H. Yates and C. B. Bromley. Mrs. Wayne McCoy solicited in "Italy."

ROADS TO BOYD COUNTY.

A call has been made for the work and money subscribed on the Louisville-Buchanan road to be applied in this month beginning on the 12th.

The East Fork road is also in line for improvement on the same plan, and now that the farm work is almost to the point where farmers have a chance to give some time to it, the project will no doubt be taken up and vigorously pushed.

Let everybody who can possibly help on these roads do so. The county has made a 50-50 agreement with the citizens.

AMERICANS ARE HELD BY TURKS IN GALILEE.

New York, July 1.—Eight hundred and forty-two American citizens, suffering privations and indignities, are virtually prisoners of the Turks in Damascus and other cities of Galilee, according to a cable message received here tonight by the Joint Distribution Committee of the American Funds for Jewish War Sufferers.

Forced to accompany the Turks in their retreat before the British advance on Jerusalem these Americans have been kept alive, the message said through relief distributed through a branch of the American Funds Committee in Damascus. A cable message from the Swedish Ambassador at Constantinople, forwarded by the State Department, reported that the Damascene committee spent $22,000 to feed, clothe and house the refugees.

It had been supposed, said the announcement, that most of Jerusalem's civil population had been left behind in the Turkish evacuation, and was being cared for by the British. It will be impossible, it was stated, to repatriate the Americans at Damascus. Accordingly the American Funds Committee will advance money whenever necessary to meet as far as possible their material wants.

SCHOOL FOR DISABLED MEN.

Washington, June 29.—Every man who goes in the army or navy is now certain that if the Germans shoot him up he will not be compelled to sell pencils or shoelaces to eke out an insufficient pension or be immured in a Soldiers' Home to rust out the years until death comes to the relief.

The United States Government has studied the whole subject of vocational rehabilitation of wounded and disabled soldiers. The experience of all the belligerents has been gone over carefully, and the marvels of re-education accomplished by some of them are fully noted. The Federal Board of Vocational Education has been at work on the proposition since August, 1917. The result is to be found in the Smith-Sears act, which passed Congress June 11, and provides a comprehensive scheme of rehabilitation for wounded and disabled men.

PLAN TO CROSS SEA.

Dayton, Ohio, June 27.—Declaring that the liberty motor would send an airplane across the Atlantic at an early date, though stating that it might be preceded by a machine equipped with a British Rolls-Royce engine this September, Major General William Brancker, Controller of Equipment of the British Air Council, voiced his opinions of the relative qualities of the two standard engines here tonight.

It is known, he said, that the liberty motor weighs 100 pounds less develops 100 horsepower more and climbs faster than the Rolls-Royce motor, which is the adopted standard of the British airplane engine.

From these standpoints we admit enthusiastically the superiority of the engine which the Americans are now counting on so much.

WORK ORDERS RECEIVED BY THE RED CROSS

LAWRENCE COUNTY CHAPTER HAS TASK LAID OUT FOR SUMMER'S WORK.

The Lawrence County Red Cross has received orders from headquarters to complete the following work by Sept. first:

25 Bed Shirts.
200 Girls' Petticoats (for refugees).
150 Sweaters.
500 Pairs Socks.

This is a considerable amount of work and will keep a large number of women busy most of the time up to September.

U. S. TROOPS BUSY.

Washington, June 30.—Marked raiding and patrolling Saturday at several points held by the Americans were reported in General Pershing's communiqué for yesterday which was received today at the war department. In Picardy a small detachment of Americans captured 36 prisoners, including one officer, and inflicted severe losses on the enemy, while in the Vosges a German raiding party was repulsed.

Increased activity by the enemy artillery and airplanes in the Marne sector on June 26 and 27 and the heavy shelling of the American positions in the Chateau-Thierry region on the same day, when the American troops advanced their line one-third of a mile were also reported.

KILLED BY TRAIN.

Estes Fuller, a prominent young man was killed at Kenova, W. Va., Friday midnight, by being crushed between two cars of a Norfolk & Western train on which he was a brakeman. The remains were taken Saturday afternoon to Pritchard, W. Va., where a large Masonic funeral took place Sunday, he having been a prominent member of that fraternity. He leaves a wife and several children, parents, brothers, and sisters. He was held in the highest esteem for his many sterling qualities, by all who knew him.

MCLINTOCK SUICIDES.

Lieut. Alexander McLintock, of Lexington, killed himself in New York a few days ago. He won fame in the battle lines of Europe as a volunteer with the Canadian forces. After being severely wounded he came home and lectured and published a book entitled "Best O' Luck."

Dr. G. W. Wroten was able to attend the morning church services at the M. E. Church last Sunday.

DEATH OF H. CHILTON OSBORN.

News of the death of Mr. H. Chilton Osborn has been received by friends here. He died at his home in LaGrange, Ill., the cause of his death being a leaky heart.

Mr. Osborn was a native of Blaine, this county, and was one of the leading citizens of that place until about 10 years ago when he moved away. With his family he located in Texas where they remained a few years, afterwards coming to Louise and residing here a while.

Mr. Osborn is survived by his wife and two sons, and an adopted daughter.

A telegram from Washington indicated Dr. Biggs was discharged from the army in March, 1917. He says he was discharged in March, 1918. Under the law he was entitled to wear the uniform a period of 90 days. He says his appearance in uniform after the expiration of the time was without intent to disregard regulations.

He told Federal officials his condition at the time of the arrest was due to knock-out drops, which, he says, were administered to him in Cincinnati without authority. He pleaded not guilty and was held in $1,000 bond for preliminary hearing July 5.

Dr. Biggs arrived in Cincinnati more than a week before. It is said he conducted himself in a manner calculated to bring disrepute upon the United States Army.

Dr. Biggs is said to be known prominently in Ashland, Ky., and Grayson Ky., where he is said to have resided and practiced medicine.

"Over the Top"

By An American Soldier
Who Went

Machine Gunner Serving in France

confronted by the following unpleasant scene.

All along the German trench, at about three-foot intervals, stood a big Prussian guardsman with his rifle at the aim, and then we found out why we had not been challenged when the man sneezed and the barbed wire had been improperly cut. About three feet in front of the trench they had constructed a single fence of barbed wire and we knew our chances were one thousand to one of returning alive. We could not rush their trench on account of this second defense. Then in front of me the challenge, "Halt," given in English rang out, and one of the finest things I have ever heard on the western front took place.

From the middle of our line some Tommy answered the challenge with, "Aw, go to h—l." It must have been the man who had sneezed or who had improperly cut the barbed wire; he wanted to show Fritz that he could die game. Then came the volley. Machine guns were turned loose and several bombs were thrown in our rear. The Boche in front of me was looking down his sight. This fellow might have, under ordinary circumstances, been handsome, but when I viewed him from the front of his rifle he had the goblins of childhood imagination relegated to the shade.

Then came a flash in front of me, the flare of his rifle—and my head seemed to burst. A bullet had hit me on the left side of my face about half an inch from my eye, smashing the cheek bone. I put my hand to my face and fell forward, biting the ground and kicking my feet. I thought I was dying, but, do you know, my past life did not unfold before me the way it does in novels.

The blood was streaming down my tunic, and the pain was awful. When I came to I said to myself, "Emp, old boy, you belong in Jersey City, and you'd better get back there as quickly as possible."

The bullets were crackling overhead. I crawled a few feet back to the German barbed wire, and in a stooping position, guiding myself by the wire, I went down the line looking for the lane we had cut through. Before reaching this lane I came to a limp form which seemed like a bag of oats hanging over the wire. In the dim light I could see that its hands were blackened, and knew it was the body of one of my mates. I put my hand on his head, the top of which had been blown off by a bomb. My fingers sank into the hole. I pulled my hand back full of blood and brains, then I went crazy with fear and horror and rushed along the wire until I came to our lane. I had just turned down this lane when something inside of me seemed to say, "Look around." I did so; a bullet caught me on the left shoulder. It did not hurt much, just felt as if someone had punched me in the back, and then my left side went numb. My arm was dangling like a rag. I fell forward in a sitting position. But all the fear had left me and I was consumed with rage and cursed the German trenches. With my right hand I felt in my tunic for my first-aid or shell dressing. In feeling over my tunic my hand came in contact with one of the bombs which I carried. Gripping it, I pulled the pin out with my teeth and blindly threw it towards the German trench. I must have been out of my head, because I was only ten feet from the trench and took a chance of being mangled. If the bomb had failed to go into the trench I would have been blown to bits by the explosion of my own bomb.

By the flare of the explosion of the bomb, which luckily landed in their trench, I saw one big Boche throw up his arms and fall backwards, while his rifle flew into the air. Another one wailed and fell forward across the sandbags—then blackness.

Realizing what a foolhardy and risky thing I had done, I was again seized with a horrible fear. I dragged myself to my feet and ran madly down the lane through the barbed wire, stumbling over cut wires, tearing my uniform, and lacerating my hands and legs. Just as I was about to reach No Man's Land again, that same voice seemed to say, "Turn around." I did so, when, "crack," another bullet caught me, this time in the left shoulder about one-half inch away from the other wound. Then it was taps for me. The lights went out.

When I came to I was crouching in a hole in No Man's Land. This shell hole was about three feet deep, so that it brought my head a few inches below the level of the ground. How I reached this hole I will never know. German "typewriters" were traversing back and forth in No Man's Land, the bullets biting the edge of my shell hole and throwing dirt all over me.

Overhead shrapnel was bursting. I could hear the fragments slap the ground. Then I went out once more. When I came to everything was silence and darkness in No Man's Land. I was soaked with blood and a big flap from the wound in my cheek was hanging over my mouth. The blood running from this flap choked me. Out of the corner of my mouth I would try and blow it back, but it would not move. I reached for my shell dressing and tried, with one hand, to bandage my face to prevent the flow. I had an awful horror of bleeding to death and was getting very faint. You would have laughed if you had seen my ludicrous attempts at bandaging with one hand. The pains in my wounded shoulder were awful and I was getting sick at the stomach. I gave up the bandaging stunt as a bad job, and then fainted.

When I came to, hell was let loose. An intense bombardment was on, and on the whole my position was decidedly unpleasant. Then, suddenly, our barrage ceased. The silence almost hurt, but not for long, because Fritz turned loose with shrapnel, machine guns, and rifle fire. Then all along our line came a cheer and our boys came over the top in a charge. The first wave was composed of "Jocks." They were a magnificent sight, kilts flapping in the wind, bare knees showing, and their bayonets glistening. In the first wave that passed my shell hole, one of the "Jocks," an immense fellow, about six feet two inches in height, jumped right over me. On the right and left of me several soldiers in colored kilts were huddled on the ground, then over came the second wave, also "Jocks."

A young Scot, when he came abreast of my shell hole, leaped into the air, his rifle shooting out of his hands, landing about six feet in front of him, bayonet first, and stuck in the ground, the butt trembling. This impressed me greatly.

Right now I can see the butt of that gun trembling. The Scot made a complete turn in the air, hit the ground, rolling over twice, each time clawing at the earth, and then remained still, about four feet from me, in a sort of sitting position. I called to him, "Are you hurt badly, Jock?" but no answer. He was dead. A dark red smudge was coming through his tunic right under the heart. The blood ran down his bare knees, making a horrible sight. On his right side he carried his water bottle. I was crazy for a drink and tried to reach this, but for the life of me could not negotiate that four feet. Then I became unconscious. When I woke up I was in an advanced first-aid post. I asked the doctor if we had taken the trench. "We took the trench and the wood beyond, all right," he said, "and your fellows did your bit; but, my lad, that was thirty-six hours ago. You were lying in No Man's Land in that hellish hole for a day and a half. It's a wonder you are alive." He also told me that out of the twenty that were in the raiding party, seventeen were killed. The officer died of wounds in crawling back to our trench and I was severely wounded, but one fellow returned without a scratch, without any prisoners. No doubt this chap was the one who had sneezed and improperly cut the barbed wire.

In the official communiqué our trench raid was described as follows:

"All quiet on the western front, excepting in the neighborhood of Gommecourt wood, where one of our raiding parties penetrated into the German lines."

It is needless to say that we had no use for our persuaders or come-alongs, as we brought back no prisoners, and until I die Old Pepper's words, "Personally I don't believe that that part of the German trench is occupied," will always come to me when I hear some fellow trying to get away with a fishy statement. I will judge it accordingly.

CHAPTER XXVII.Blighty.

From this first-aid post, after inoculating me with antitetanus serum to prevent lockjaw, I was put into an ambulance and sent to a temporary hospital behind the lines. To reach this hospital we had to go along a road about five miles in length. This road was under shell fire, for now and then a flare would light up the sky—a tremendous explosion—and then the road seemed to tremble. We did not mind, though no doubt some of us wished that a shell would hit us and end our misery. Personally, I was not particular. It was nothing but bump, jolt, rattle, and bang.

Several times the driver would turn around and give us a "Cheero, mates, we'll soon be there—" fine fellows, those ambulance drivers, a lot of them go West, too.

We gradually drew out of the fire zone and pulled up in front of an immense dugout. Stretcher-bearers carried me down a number of steps and placed me on a white table in a brightly lit room.

A sergeant of the Royal Army Medical corps removed my bandages and cut off my tunic. Then the doctor, with his sleeves rolled up, took charge. He winked at me and I winked back, and then he asked, "How do you feel, smashed up a bit?"

I answered: "I'm all right, but I'd give a quid for a drink of Bass."

He nodded to the sergeant, who disappeared, and I'll be darned if he didn't return with a glass of ale. I could only open my mouth about a quarter of an inch, but I got away with every drop of that ale. It tasted just like Blighty, and that is heaven to Tommies.

The doctor said something to an orderly, the only word I could catch was "chloroform," then they put some kind of an arrangement over my nose and mouth, and it was me for dreamland.

When I opened my eyes I was lying on a stretcher, in a low wooden building. Everywhere I looked I saw rows of Tommies on stretchers, some dead to the world, and the rest with fags in their mouths.

The main topic of their conversation was Blighty. Nearly all had a grin on their faces, except those who didn't have enough face left to grin with. I grinned with my right eye, the other was bandaged.

Stretcher-bearers came in and began to carry the Tommies outside. You could hear the chug of the engines in the waiting ambulances.

I was put into an ambulance with three others and away we went for an eighteen-mile ride.

I was on a bottom stretcher. The lad right across from me was smashed up something horrible.

Right above me was a man from the Royal Irish rifles, while across from him was a Scotchman.

We had gone about three miles when I heard the death-rattle in the throat of the man opposite. He had gone to rest across the Great Divide. I think at the time I envied him.

The man of the Royal Irish rifles had had his left foot blown off, the jointing of the ambulance over the rough road had loosened up the bandages on his foot, and had started it bleeding again. This blood ran down the side of the stretcher and started dripping. I was lying on my back, too weak to move, and the dripping of this blood got me in my unbandaged right eye. I closed my eye and pretty soon could not open the lid; the blood had congealed and closed it, as if it were glued down.

An English girl dressed in khaki was driving the ambulance, while beside her on the seat was a corporal of the R. A. M. C. They kept up a running conversation about Blighty which almost wrecked my nerves; pretty soon from the stretcher above me, the Irishman became aware of the fact that the bandage from his foot had become loose; it must have pained him horribly, because he yelled in a loud voice:

"If you don't stop this bloody death wagon and fix this d—— bandage on my foot, I will get out and walk."

The girl on the seat turned around and in a sympathetic voice asked, "Poor fellow, are you very badly wounded?"

The Irishman, at this question, let out a howl of indignation and answered, "And I very badly wounded, what bloody cheek; no, I'm not wounded; I've only been kicked by a canary bird."

The ambulance immediately stopped, and the corporal came to the rear and fixed him up, and also washed out my right eye. I was too weak to thank him, but it was a great relief. Then I must have become unconscious, because when I regained my senses, the ambulance was at a standstill, and my stretcher was being removed from it.

It was night, lanterns were flashing here and there, and I could see stretcher-bearers hurrying to and fro. Then I was carried into a hospital train.

The inside of this train looked like heaven to me, just pure white, and we met our first Red Cross nurses; we thought they were angels. And they were.

Nice little soft bunks and clean, white sheets.

A Red Cross nurse sat beside me during the whole ride which lasted three hours. She was holding my wrist; I thought I had made a hit, and tried to tell her how I got wounded, but she would put her finger to her lips and say, "Yes, I know, but you mustn't talk now, try to go to sleep, it'll do you good, doctor's orders." Later on I learned that she was taking my pulse every few minutes, as I was very weak from the loss of blood and they expected me to snuff it, but I did well.

From the train we went into ambulances for a short ride to the hospital ship Panama. Another palace and more angels. I don't remember the trip across the channel.

I opened my eyes; I was being carried on a stretcher through lanes of people, some cheering, some waving flags and others crying. The flags were Union Jacks, I was in Southampton. Blighty at last. My stretcher was strewn with flowers, cigarettes, and chocolates. Tears started to run down my cheek from my good eye. I like a baby was crying. Can you beat it?

Then into another hospital train, a five-hour ride to Folkestone, another ambulance ride, and then I was carried into Munsey ward of the American Women's War hospital and put into a real bed.

This real bed was too much for my unstrung nerves and I fainted.

When I came to, a pretty Red Cross nurse was bending over me, bathing my forehead with cold water, then she left and the ward orderly placed a screen around my bed, and gave me a much-needed bath and clean pajamas. Then the screen was removed and a bowl of steaming soup was given me. It tasted delicious.

Before finishing my soup the nurse came back to ask me my name and number. She put this information down in a little book and then asked:

"Where do you come from?" I answered:

"From the big town behind the Statue of Liberty," upon hearing this she started jumping up and down, clapping her hands, and calling out to three nurses across the ward:

"Come here, girls—at last we have got a real live Yankee with us."

They came over and besieged me with questions, until the doctor arrived. Upon learning that I was an American he almost crushed my hand in his grip of welcome. They also were Americans, and were glad to see me.

The doctor very tenderly removed my bandages and told me, after viewing my wounds, that he would have to take me to the operating theater immediately. Personally I didn't care what was done with me.

In a few minutes, four orderlies who looked like undertakers dressed in white, brought a stretcher to my bed and placing me on it carried me out of the ward, across a courtyard to the operating room or "pictures," as Tommy calls it.

I don't remember having the anesthetic applied.

When I came to I was again lying in a bed in Munsey ward. One of the nurses had draped a large American flag over the head of the bed, and clasped in my hand was a smaller flag, and it made me feel good all over to again see the "Stars and Stripes."

At that time I wondered when the boys in the trenches would see the emblem of the "Land of the free and the home of the brave" beside them, doing its bit in this great war of civilization.

My wounds were very painful, and several times at night I would dream that myriads of khaki-clad figures would pass my bed and each would stop, bend over me, and whisper, "The best of luck, mate."

Soaked with perspiration I would awake with a cry, and the night nurse would come over and hold my hand. This awakening got to be a habit with me until that particular nurse was transferred to another ward.

In three weeks' time, owing to the special treatment received, I was able to sit up and get my bearings. Our ward contained seventy-five patients, 90 per cent of which were surgical cases.

At the head of each bed hung a temperature chart and diagnosis sheet. Across this sheet would be written "G. S. W." or "S. W." the former meaning gun shot wound and the latter shell wound. The "S. W." predominated, especially among the Royal Field artillery and Royal engineers.

About forty different regiments were represented, and many arguments ensued as to the respective fighting ability of each regiment. The rivalry was wonderful. A Jock arguing with an Irishman, then a strong Cockney accent would butt in favor of the London regiment. Before long a Welshman, followed by a member of a Yorkshire regiment, and, perhaps, a Canadian intrude themselves and the argument waxes loud and furious. The patients in the beds start howling for them to settle their dispute outside and the ward is in an uproar. The head sister comes along and with a wave of the hand completely routs the doughy warriors and again silence reigns supreme.

Wednesday and Sunday of each week were visiting days and were looked forward to by the men, because they meant parcels containing fruit, sweets or fags. When a patient had a regular visitor, he was generally kept well supplied with these delicacies. Great jealousy is shown among the men as to their visitors, and many word wars ensue after visitors leave.

When a man is sent to a convalescent home, he generally turns over his next visitor to the man in the next bed.

Most visitors have autograph albums and bore Tommy to death by asking him to write the particulars of his wounding in same. Several Tommies visitor would talk this unpleasant job by telling the visitors that they cannot write, but this never phases the owner of the album; he or she, generally she, offers to write it for them and Tommy is stung into telling his experiences.

The questions asked Tommy by visitors would make a clever joke book to a military man.

Some kindly looking old lady will stop at your bed and in a sympathetic voice address you: "You poor boy, wounded by those terrible Germans. You must be suffering frightful pain. A bullet, did you say? Well, tell me, I have always wanted to know, did it hurt worse going in or coming out?"

Tommy generally replies that he did not stop to figure it out when he was hit.

One very nice-looking, overenthusiastic young thing, stopped at my bed and asked, "What wounded you in the face?"

In a polite but bored tone I answered, "A rifle bullet."

With a look of disdain she passed to the next bed, first ejaculating, "Oh! Only a bullet? I thought it was a shell." Why she should think a shell wound was more of a distinction beats me. I don't see a whole lot of difference myself.

The American Women's War hospital was a heaven for wounded men. They were allowed every privilege possible conducive with the rules and military discipline. The only fault was that the men's passes were restricted.

To get a pass required an act of parliament. Tommy tried many tricks to get out, but the commandant, an old Boer war officer, was wise to them all, and it took a new and clever ruse to make him affix his signature to the coveted slip of paper.

As soon as it would get dark many a patient climbed over the wall and went "on his own," regardless of many signs staring him in the face, "Out of bounds for patients." Generally the nurses were looking the other way when one of these night raids started. I hope this information will get none of them into trouble, but I cannot resist the temptation to let the commandant know that occasionally we put it over on him.

One afternoon I received a note, through our underground channel, from my female visitor, asking me to attend a party at her house that night. I answered that she could expect me and to meet me at a certain place on the road well known by all patients, and some visitors, as "over the wall." I told her I would be on hand at seven-thirty.

About seven-fifteen I sneaked my overcoat and cap out of the ward and hid it in the bushes. Then I told the nurse, a particular friend of mine, that I was going for a walk in the rose garden. She winked and I knew that everything was all right on her end.

Going out of the ward, I slipped into the bushes and made for the wall. It was dark as pitch and I was groping through the underbrush, when suddenly I stepped into space and felt myself rushing downward, a horrible bump, and blackness. When I came to my wounded shoulder was hurting horribly. I was lying against a circular wall

HOME CIRCLE COLUMN

Something to Live For.

Chauncey M. Depew observed his 16th birth anniversary recently. One of our exchanges says that the Mon-tauk club of Brooklyn, as has been its custom for 27 years, tendered Mr. Depew a banquet.

In his address at the banquet Mr. Depew said, among other things:

"There is nothing that prolongs life more than having an object to live for. This effects the will, and it is the common experience of doctors that the will is the greatest enemy of death. The mother is pronounced hopeless, but she says, 'I will live until my son returns.' Against all the predictions of her medical advisers, that son circles the globe and arrives in time to receive the blessing. The proof that it was the will power that sustained this mother is that she rarely lives an hour after the purpose for which she made this tremendous exertion has been accomplished."

The sentiment of the New York statesman and orator is as true as gospel. The man or woman who has a well defined object in life passes over little obstacles without even seeing them. The man who keeps his eye set on one big aim can see little bumps and ruts.

He who has ambitions that are great, and has them constantly in mind, makes his appetites and pleasures and exercises and eating and drinking subservient to these ambitions and the busy man with an ambition will outlive by many months or years the lazy being who has no object in life except to exist by following the course of least resistance.

Have an object in life. You will not only enjoy life more as you are living it, but you will have more years added in which to enjoy good things.

Scolding and nagging never mended anything. They have ruined the peace of unnumbered families.

There are a thousand ways of making other people happy, and you have only to look about to find them.

If a man dares to live within his means, and is resolute in his purpose not to appear more than he really is, let him be applauded. There is something fresh and rare in such an example.

If you would gather up all tender memories, all the lights and shades of the heart, all banqueting and reunions, all filial fraternal, paternal and conjugal affections and you had only just four letters to spell out the height and depth and length and breadth and magnitude and eternity of meaning, you would, with streaming eyes, and with trembling voice, and agitated hand write it out in those four loving capitals. HOME.

Girls, listen to your mothers; you will never regret it. No matter what your advantages are above what hers were, you are no better. You can rest assured that it is no book learning or knowledge of fashion that will keep your feet away from the many pitfalls that she can warn you from, in a tender, loving fashion, that you would do well to heed. No matter how mothers may speak, you may rest assured their hearts are in the right place, and that they want their daughters to be innocent and good, rather than fashionable.

Be neighborly, be obliging, be kind and courteous, and then when sorrow and sickness come you will have a sympathy and help.

Let a child feel you are displeased not at him, but at the sin he commits. Can an angry parent do this?

People who make mistakes are those who quarrel with one another before their children; or who allow the latter to grow up in idleness; those who talk about their troubles to strangers; the father who tells his children to go the way he does not go himself, and the young woman who does not make a confidant of her mother.

Let us take time to be pleasant. These small courtesies, which we often omit because they are small, will some day look larger to us than wealth which we covet, or the fame for which we struggle.

Don't forget mother when picnics and good times are in order. Don't let her do all the hard work. And boys, treat her to some fresh air every day behind the newly broken colt.

The best way to keep the boys at home is to make it an object for them not to go out to seek amusement, for these they will have. Every farm home ought to be made a very heaven on earth to its inmates.

If all the members of the family were as courteous and kind to each other as they are to strangers what a difference it would make in the home atmosphere.

A cheerful countenance is a duty we owe to the neighbors and how much more is it necessary in the home! Our friends can get out of our way if we are not good companions, but our family cannot. They are helpless victims, shut up in the same house with us. For the sake of the children, for the sake of the elders, for the sake of humanity, let us cultivate a pleasant smile, a hearty laugh, and a habit of cheerfulness.

Love's Messenger

By VIRGINIA LEE

(Copyright, 1917, Western Newspaper Union.)

That evening Waldron called upon Netta. He was immensely gratified to observe her graciousness and interest. Her eyes were sparkling as though some new great joy infused her. Finally she lifted a folded sheet from a stand. "Gyp was a faithful messenger," Mr. Rossiter, she said. "The lines are beautiful."

"The lines?" repeated Rossiter vaguely.

"The poem."

"You mean—"

"Why I supposed—" and there Netta floundered. Rather confused she told of Gyp bringing her the poem, and she supposed—she supposed—

"I declare!" Rossiter relieved her embarrassment by saying after he had read the lines. "Miss Brice—Netta," he added in a low, intense tone, "those are just my sentiments and—"

At that critical moment Netta's mother came into the room and the avowal trembling on his eager lips, and the expectant, blushing face so near to his own lost its force. Still, Waldron Rossiter left the rose-clustered cottage that night feeling that he was closer to Netta than ever before.

He assayed to trace the origin of the poem next day. Taking Gyp with him, Rossiter went over the route of the day previous. When the animal neared the hide-out of the tramps he darted towards it. Erick Doane was seated under a shady tree, writing. This was suggestive to Rossiter. He approached and engaged Erick in conversation. Soon he knew that he was the poet whose effusion had paved the way to happiness.

Then Matt appeared. Waldron Rossiter was gentle hearted and sympathetic.

"I did, and no trouble at all. Oswald & Ewing just exactly grabbed it, and say I ordered another one for a big sale they've got on for Saturday. I got two dollars, and we're fitted out with viands for three days. I happened to mention about you and our fix, and the head of the firm got quite interested, and said he'd double the price if you made the poem a funny one."

"Now, isn't that fine!" cried Erick, his wan face aglow with pleasure. "Cheap, too cheap," declared Matt, wagging his head apologetically. "Why, if we were fixed so you were comfortable and easy in your mind, you could turn out regular high-up magazine stuff, or get out a book and all that, and make a fortune in a year."

"That's a dream, Matt," said Erick, sorrowfully. "You overestimate me, dear old fellow that you are. I can jingle together a few simple rhymes, but real poetry takes genius, and I'm a long way from having that."

"But that so?" veciferated Matt stormily.

"I know better. What did we do at the last town, where you wrote a dedication poem on a new city hall they were putting up? Five dollars from the orator of the occasion. And the little two-line rhymes you got up for a party of some young folks. Ten cents apiece, and forty of them. Say, Albert Tennyson would have doted on you, and Lord Byron would have made you his close pal."

Erick smiled indulgently, and then the two fell to discussing the edibles in the basket contained. They were tramps, homeless, friendless but one was a poet in a way, and the other had a great purpose in view and they were by means of the ordinary drift of hoboes.

Matt Burns, true professional, had picked up Erick Doane, who was the poorly paid clerk of a cheap lodging house. The latter was frail, sickly, unable to do a man's work, and a physician had told him that he could not live long unless he located permanently in a warm climate.

Big-hearted Matt took fancy to the young fellow. He grew proud of his poetic efforts, he experienced a certain satisfaction in becoming "the patron of a man of genius."

"I've adopted you, Erick," he said one day. "I'm going to get you to Florida before the cold sets in, and bunk down in some snug spot there, and you shall develop your literary abilities while I work the roads, see?" And now they were carrying out the program.

"What's the new screed, Erick?" inquired Matt, as he noticed the folded sheet lying on the grass.

"Oh, that is a set of rhymes of the love sort," answered Erick casually. "I never was in love, but that's the kind of stuff I would write if I were."

"Send it to some magazine, Erick," suggested Matt, "and maybe you'll catch on."

But Erick smiled dubiously, for he knew that he was simply a rhymester and not a poet. And when next he sought to show his love verses to Matt later on, the wind had blown them away or something else was responsible for their mysterious disappearance.

This was responsible: a dog, a smart little fox terrier, trained by its indulgent master to carry small packages in its teeth. Unnoticed by either of the tramps, little Gyp had scurried across the grass, picked up the folded sheet, and holding it daintily, scampered back to the side of its strolling master.

Waldron Rossiter noticed that his canine favorite was carrying a scrap of paper in his mouth, but that was not uncommon, and he bestowed only casual attention upon the circumstance. He was thinking of Netta Brice, and a certain trace of self-consciousness was apparent in stride and manner as he passed the house where the beloved one lived. Rossiter was of a shy, retiring nature, and he simply lifted his hat to Netta Brice on the porch and passed on.

Not so Gyp; Miss Netta had fed him too many dainties to be forgotten. The animal darted in through the gateway, deposited the love poem at Netta's feet, received a chocolate from a box at her side and then rejoined his master.

Easy to Increase Acreage.
Not only can we greatly increase our acreage of useful food crops by such impressive and expensive methods as draining swamps and irrigating deserts and the homely one of plowing up pastures and brush patches, but the experts have also been faithfully telling us such unpalatable, but now hopeful and promising truths as that our acreage yield of any of the great staples, wheat, oats, barley, potatoes, is barely half that of the average yield of any of the countries of western Europe, so that we have plenty of room to grow and improve.

This inferior yield from our matchless American soil is due partly to less labor applied per acre, partly to less fertilizer. Here our experts come forward with another even more encouraging statement, and that is that there is now, in the light of modern agricultural science, practically no such thing as a poor soil, or as an exhausted soil.

Not Consistent.

Bix—No meat for me. I never eat anything that costs the life of a living creature.

Dix—Then drop that potato you're eating. Don't you know that the production of potatoes costs the lives of millions of poor potato bugs?—Boston Transcript.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

We are authorized to announce
W. J. FIELDS

as a candidate for Representative in Congress, subject to the action of the Democrats of the Ninth Congressional District of Kentucky, in the August primary, 1918.

The American troops that have just landed in Italy were given an official reception by the municipality of a certain unnamed town. The men were literally received with open arms, and the delighted civilians bore the Yankees on their shoulders through the town.

Eugene V. Debs, the loud-mouthed anarchist who has been causing trouble in this country for several years, has been arrested and locked up for ten violations of the espionage law in a speech made at Canton, Ohio, recently. He is subject to 20 years' imprisonment and $10,000 fine. This makes one of the best movements ever started in the United States. All those disloyal troublemakers should be locked up. Bolshevism has had its trial in Russia and has proved a most colossal failure. This is a good time to rid the world of this menace as well as the German curse.

In the present crisis the selfish individual sticks out like a sore thumb on the body politic. Deep selfishness and real patriotism are as incompatible as fire and water. The demands of the struggle against German slavery are so enormous that the extremely selfish persons who refuse to answer the calls stand out branded and disgraced. The loyal public is growing extremely impatient with the hogs who grab and horde, and dodge the calls of their country. They are expected to do as much as they are able, too. No pittance will suffice. Millions of loyal people with good credit are borrowing money to help their country borrowing to buy Liberty bonds and War Savings Certificates and to help the Red Cross. Let no one deceive himself into believing that he will be overlooked. The eyes of neighbors are wide open to these things as never before. They are busy discussing and checking up on everybody. We sometimes astonished by the extent to which this course is being carried out. Boycotts in business, the public taunts of disloyalty, the open condemnation of stingy, grasping swine who take all and give nothing, is coming swift and sure. The goats are being separated from the sheep. The storm will break in fury when the casualty lists grow to enormous size arousing the people to the fact that thousands of our best young men are dying for the protection of the sharks who hug their nasty dollars to their bosoms and calmly watch the heroes die.

Wheat Rules for Farmers

You may say to farmers that we have secured for Kentucky the same privileges granted to other Southern states, namely, that from the 1918 wheat which they take to mill they can withdraw from the mill sufficient flour to give them three months supply based on a calculation of 12 pounds per month per person in their household, and tenants, provided they take substitutes on the 50-50 basis or furnish certificates to the miller that they have obtained the substitute elsewhere or had ground their own corn to the amount required.

In addition, the miller can retain from the wheat on a deposit contract, three times that amount on the understanding that the deposit contract is subject to revision by the Government on October first. This release of the 30 day supply and increase of allowance from six to 12 pounds per person, is in accordance with the whole plan of asking the farmers to raise their own supply of flour. However, as the size of the harvest cannot be known for some time and the allied necessities cannot yet be fully determined, it is necessary as a war measure today to limit withdrawals from the mills to the three months supply of flour.

NOTICE FROM LAWRENCE COUNTY TAX COMMISSIONER.

Inasmuch as the office of County Assessor has been abolished and the duties of Assessor now being imposed on me as County Tax Commissioner, I desire to say for the benefit of the taxpayers of my county, that the law provides that each taxpayer shall come to my office in Louisa and give his list. I desire further to say that in order to remove the burden from the taxpayer as much as possible from coming to the county seat to list property, I propose to make dates and designate places in each voting precinct where I will meet you for the purpose of taking your lists in similar manner to that now used by the Sheriff for collecting taxes.

I will give ample notice of the day and place in the different precincts, to meet me and give your list, and I now ask that you watch for this notice and be prompt in meeting me or my assistant to give your list.

Why can't we say "Till do more to help win in the future than I have in the past." Be a true American not a slacker.

DAILY WAR REVIEW

A Creed For Ex-Germans

Moscow has fallen; Lenin and Trotsky have fled; Korniloff and Kaledines are in control of the city. These were the rumors spread broadcast yesterday, presumably from German sources. In the same connection with the statement that the Bolshevik Government had been overthrown come reports that Archduke Nicholas has proclaimed himself Emperor. Contradictory reports continue to pour in regarding the assassination of Nicholas Romanoff, the former Emperor. Some dispatches announce the former Czar is well and in good health. Various details also are given as to his purported assassination.

The Senate rejected by a vote of 49 to 25 the Fall amendment to the $12,000,000,000 Army Appropriation Bill extending the draft ages to 20 and 40 years, respectively. An amendment of Senator New providing for compulsory military training of young men also was rejected.

President Wilson sent to the Senate the names of eight new Major Generals and 13 Brigadier Generals of the National Army to fill vacancies now existing in military service. The selections were made by Gen. Pershing and Gen. March and it was apparent that the policy of selection for merit is fully fixed throughout the army.

British and French forces, striking in Flanders and to the south, took the Germans by surprise and gained ground to the depth of about a mile on a total front of eight miles. French troops captured more than 1,000 prisoners, while the British took several hundred. Hard fighting is in progress in the mountains on the Italian front.

Plans of the United States for aiding Russia in rehabilitating herself show that the first step contemplated is informal assistance through American business and industrial leaders. It is planned to license freely for export, whatever is recommended as necessary by the business men who will go to the aid of that country.

Every effort is being taken by the German government to prevent the truth as to the cause of the war leaking out. The memoirs of Prince Lichnowsky have particularly perturbed the government and with every issuance of the pamphlets on the subject, government agents are on hand to buy them at once.

Louisville fell far short of her quota in the War Savings Stamp campaign and the drive will be renewed Tuesday and Wednesday. Many firms went on the honor roll and more names were added to the list of limit pledges.

Two conscientious objectors at Camp Taylor, selective service men from Peru, Ind., were sentenced to 10 years' imprisonment at Fort Leavenworth.

The United States closes its first fiscal year as participant in the world war with a trade balance of $3,000,000,000. Exports show a slight decrease while imports gained over the same period for last year. This showing is regarded by Government officials as extremely gratifying. Imports from South America have made the Latin republics the creditor of the United States.

The enormous sum of $22,000,000 went through the hoppers of Congress. This included the vast army bill, the naval and sundry civil service measure and the postoffice appropriation. The haste was made in the hope that the measures could be passed before the end of the fiscal year and to clear the way for the midsummer recess.

The expected German drive has failed to materialize, and instead the Allies have not only made gains of importance but have bolstered their lines and are in fine condition for the expected attack. Counter blows delivered against the French have been successfully repelled.

Special American units sent from the United States to supplement the American forces already sent to the Alpine front have arrived in Italy. Gen. March, Chief of Staff, announced yesterday. Gen. March declared the war situation was especially favorable to the allies as the result of the rout of the Austrians.

A British airplane maker has declared he could turn out 10,000 "super-sailor dreadnaughts" in the United States by April 1, 1919. He declared the craft could cross the Atlantic in a continuous stream and would defeat the Germans within 30 to 60 days if the work is started now.

One hundred and sixty-one students from Camp Shelby, Miss., arrived at Camp Taylor yesterday in fine condition and showing no mark of fatigue from their long trip. Among the arrivals are some Kentuckians and Indians, who will take the course in the artillery school.

Announcement has been made by Secretary of War Baker that a regiment of American troops from the expeditionary forces of Gen. Pershing has been ordered to the Italian front. On their arrival, which is expected shortly, the Austrians will have facing them men from Italy, the United States, Great Britain and France.

Circuit Judge Stout at Frankfort, issued a temporary order restraining the newly appointed State Board of Health which organized yesterday, from assuming any of the functions of office and from interfering in any way with the old board and its activities. The hearing has been set for July 3.

Reports of the assassination of the former Czar of Russia, Nicholas Romanoff, by Bolshevik troops, were received in London from various sources. The reports, however, lacked confirmation. It was said that the Czar was given a brief trial at Yekaterinburg and then shot to death.

A Creed For Ex-Germans

The whole question of the attitude of the foreigner who becomes an American citizen has never been enunciated more effectively than in the simple eloquence of the following words, sent out on a Christmas card by the late Carl Ballweg of Emporia, Kas., and quoted by the Gazette of that city in connection with his recent death: "I speak from the viewpoint of the foreign born. I and millions of others like me, came to this country alone, without friends. We sponged on all America had, her free lands, her free schools, and above all, her spirit of open-hearted comradeship. She owed us nothing, but she gave us all. We swore allegiance to her flag, her Constitution and her laws. We would be recreants, ingrates, perfidors and curs in the hour of her need, we counseled with her enemies and were disloyal to her cause."

The Gazette pays to his memory this well-earned tribute:

"Loyal, courageous, appreciative and essentially kind was Carl Ballweg in all the 35 years of his life in this town. As a young man in the bank he was devoted to his trust, as a merchant he sold honest goods at honest weights. As a friend he realized all his obligations. And in the time of his adopted country's trial his loyalty was a lamp that led others to their duty. Emporia has lost a real man, one of those substantial citizens who are dependable and just and stalwart in every hour of need."

It is the veriest nonsense to argue that any German strains his loyalty to America when he condemns the infamies which Prussianism is practicing upon the world today, especially in view of the fact that America is at war with his native land. Any traitor who flees with his right hand and strikes his adopted country in the back by giving aid and comfort to its enemies deserves the severest penalty that can be inflicted. Let all of them paste Carl Ballweg's creed in their hats and look at their hats every time they are tempted to betray their adopted country by word or deed—keeping the other eye on the prison doors which are yawning to admit every trouble-maker, every pro-German, every kaiser-help'er in America who can be caught and convicted in due process of law."—Kans. City Journal.

ARRIVAL OF AMERICANS IN ITALY OCCASION OF JOYFUL CELEBRATIONS.

Rome, June 29, Saturday.—A great official reception was given today by the municipality of —— in honor of the American officers and men of the military contingents and ambulances which have just arrived in Italy. Large crowds waited outside the barracks where the Americans are stationed, surrounded them on their exit and bore them through the town. Traffic in the whole city was virtually interrupted by the population thronging the streets to watch the passage of the Americans.

The commander of the contingent thanked the municipality for its hospitality, saying:

"We have had a jolly fine time."

The commander then asked his men to express their gratitude by giving the customary three cheers, for the people of this town and for Italians in general. The cheers were given lustily.

Will Disconcert Strausenburgh.

Amsterdam, June 30.—The announcement that the American force was being dispatched to the Italian front will come as an unpleasant surprise to Field Marshal Von Strausenburgh, the Austro-Hungarian chief of staff, who yesterday told the Neue Freie Press of Vienna, that he did not believe Americans with their fastidious habits and their lack of experience in the hardships of war would make up for the entente allied loss of the great army of hard trained Russian soldiers with their frugal needs.

The field marshal added that the Austro-Hungarian army was immune to disintegration influences and that no propaganda campaign ever would destroy its loyalty to ancient traditions.

LOTUS HARRIS PRICHARD.
Was born at Fort Gay, Wayne-co., West Virginia, on July 1, 1899. She died at the King's Daughters' hospital, Ashland, Ky., June 23, 1918. Age 18 years, 11 months and 23 days. She was married to Delbert Prichard October 14, 1916, at her home at Kavanaugh, was converted and joined the M. E. Church South at Kavanaugh July, 1916 and lived and died in this faith, with a smile and her face shining with the light of Heaven. She had many friends and seemed to remember all of them to the last. She was a good wife and devoted to her husband. Her mother was with her during her illness day and night until she was taken.

Mrs. Prichard was the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Harris, who are now located at Salt Peter, W. Va., employed by the U. S. government attending the lock which is located at this place. She was loved by all who knew her. She leaves a husband, father, mother and brother to mourn her loss. Mr. Prichard, a fine young man, is mail carrier on the Buchanan rural route at this place. They were both happy and hopeful and there seemed to be a bright future for them, though our plans are not always God's plans, therefore they are not always best, and Lotus was willing for Him to have His way and we trust that this act of Providence may prove a benediction to all and that we all meet Lotus in Heaven as we promised.

BARNROCK.

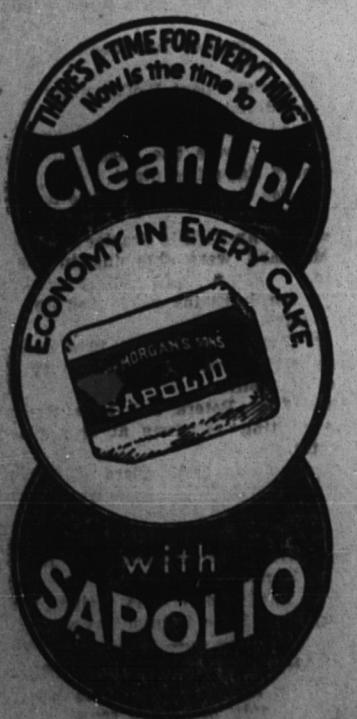

Crops are looking fine. Wheat fairly good. Oats and potatoes cut a little short on account of dry weather. We had a good rain last night. Lightning caught on the telephone line and ran into garden post at Postmaster M. L. Shaggs', but did no serious damage.

A lot of young men from here have gone to the training camps and some are in France. It grieves our hearts to see so many going to war, knowing that all cannot return. The writer expects to go soon and intends to make a real soldier.

NOTICE TO POSTMASTERS.

The $3 money order postoffices in Lawrence county are each entitled to a fixed credit of $125. This can be maintained only by ordering from the postmaster at Louisa each day enough to make up for the sales of that day. This is the only way to handle it, as the postmaster at Louisa can not send more than enough to keep up the limit. It is important that postmasters keep a full stock now that the sales will be heavy.

LEMON JUICE IS FRECKLE REMOVER

Girls! Make this cheap beauty lotion
...to clear and whiten your skin...

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle and tan lotion, and complexion beautifier, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of orchard white for a few cents. Mix this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day and see how freckles and blemishes will disappear and how clear, soft and white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless.

O the Kaiser called the devil up
On the telephone one day.
The girls at central listened to
All they had to say.

"Hello," she heard the Kaiser's voice.
"Is old man Satan home?"
Just tell him this is Kaiser Bill
That wants him on the phone.

The devil said "Hello" to Bill
And Bill said, "How are you?"
I'm running here a hell on earth
So tell me what to do.

What can I do," the devil said.
"My dear old Kaiser Bill—
There's a thing that I can do.
To help you, I sure will."

The Kaiser said, "Now listen,
And I will try to tell
The way I am running
On earth a modern hell."

I've saved this for many years,
And I've started out to kill.
That it will be a modern job,
You leave to Kaiser Bill.

My army went through Belgium,
Shooting women and children down.
We tore up all her country,
Blew up all her towns.

My zeppos dropped bombs on cities
Killing both old and young
And those that zeppos didn't get
Were taken out and hung.

I started out for Paris,
With the aid of poisonous gas.
The Belgians, damn 'em, stopped us.
And would not let us pass.

My submarines are devils.
Why you should see them fight.
They go sneaking through the sea
And sink a ship at night.

I was running things to suit me
Till a year or so ago.
When a man called Woodrow Wilson.
Wrote me to go more slow.

He said to me "Dear William,
We don't want to make you sore.
So be sure to tell your U-boats
To sink our ships no more."

We have told you for the last time,
So, Dear Bill, it's up to you,
And if you do not stop it,
You have got to fight us too.

I did not listen to him.
And he's coming after me
With a million Yankee soldiers
From their homes across the sea.

Now, that's why I called you, Satan.
For I want advice from you,
I knew that you would tell us
Just what we ought to do.

Satan's Answer.
"My dear old Kaiser William,
There's not much for me to tell.
For the Yanks will make it hotter
Than I can for you, in hell.

I've been a mean old devil
But not half so mean as you.
And the minute that you get here
I will give my job to you.

I'll be ready for your coming
And I'll keep the fires all bright
And I'll have your room all ready
When the Yanks begin to fight.

For the boys in blue will get you
I have nothing more to tell.
Hang up the phone and get your hat,
And meet me here in hell.

Letters From Our Soldiers.

Norfolk, Va., June 23, 1918.
Big Sandy News,
Louisa, Kentucky.

My Dear People:
Now here I go as if I were actually writing home, but it does almost seem that way to me.

This is Sunday and I am going to get real lonesome if I don't hurry and write and tell of some of the latest doings around Norfolk. To begin with I am in charge of quarters and of course that put a stop to my visiting my friends, as I am doing special duty to day.

Well, I must tell an incident that happened at the post of the guard a few days ago. I was commander of the guard and one of the Corporals caught a Lieutenant sleeping on post. So the Corporal turned him in to the officer of the day, and after the investigation the Lieutenant arrested him and turned him over to me as a prisoner. After I had taken his belt and his rifle and started to the guard house with him, he began to curse the kaiser. After amusing himself at this for awhile he said, I am done with that Lieutenant. And I said, So are we with old Kaiser Bill and the entire bunch of rough necks. He then began at such a rate that it became necessary to call a small patrol to take him to prison. I thought for awhile he was crazy for some reason.

I am coming home if I can get leave if not I am asking every one in Sandy Valley to do all they can to help throttle the beast of Berlin and his entire pack. I am certain that what I do will be free, and if I give any blood it will be free.

When I hear "The Star Spangled Banner" it fills me so full of love for U. S. A. and so full of hatred for Prussia, I think I shall have to yell some evening like a savage Indian. That will be the only way to relieve my feelings.

Trusting I will see everyone in Sandy Valley with the next month, I remain,

A Devoted Friend to Sandy Valley

all America and the Interest of Freedom and Democracy for the world.

JOHN M. BENTLEY

LAWRENCE COUNTY BOY WRITES FROM DELAWARE.

Fred See, son of Mr. and Mrs. Crit See, of Route No. 2, Louisa, who recently left for camp, writes home as follows:

Wilmington, Del., June 12, 1918.
Dear Mama and All:

Will write a few lines this morning.
I am feeling fine and hope you are all well.

I imagine the corn is fine by this time. How is the hill field I planted? How is the garden? I would like to have some beans and new potatoes.

I have been inoculated three times and vaccinated twice, but the vaccination has never taken.

Tell mother not to worry. I am always a good boy, and I always try to take the best care of myself.

They sure made some money at Walbridge all right. I think that was fine. The Red Cross is certainly a fine thing. Yesterday they gave us all a "kit." There was everything that a person needs, two handkerchiefs, safety razors, soap, tooth brush, and several other little things that come in handy.

As we came through there were Red Cross workers at every station with apples, cigarettes, chocolates and such things. It sure was good to a person that was hungry.

Must close as it is almost time to start drilling.

Answer soon.

Your son,
FRED.

LAWRENCE COUNTY BOY IN CAMP TAYLOR.

Dear Friends:—I will write a word again as I wrote some time ago when I was in pretty tough luck. That was when I was in the engineers. I was transferred from there back to my old company and from there into the Military Police and I am in a pretty good place now. We are doing a big business, believe me. We are cleaning up the city of Louisville the bootleggers and all other outlaws are having a hard time, and people, I wish we were close around my home town to clean up a little. I can't tell where they will send us I understand they will keep us here to guard the camp. There are not many in camp now, about 12,000, I guess, but there will be about 20,000 in here next week. They keep the boys here only just long enough to give them their shots in the arm and their clothes and they send them South. We have about 40 in the 34th division Guard House and they are bad actors, too. Well, I feel a little better now as I have just eaten my supper. We have plenty to eat. I will give you people our bill of fare. For supper we had roast beef and fried potatoes, peas and beets, dressing, tomatoes, blackberry jam and ice tea, and good old corn dodger, that's what suits me.

I must close and go on guard.

Yours respectfully,
GEORGE HALL

CHICKENS ASSESSED

FIFTY CENTS EACH.

Frankfort, Ky., June 27.—Every chicken in Kentucky, from frying size up must be assessed July 1 at 50c, every turkey at $1 and every duck and guinea at 25c. This uniform value for assessing fowls was agreed on today at the County Tax Commissioners' conference. The County Tax Commissioner who best assesses his county will get $100 in gold. This prize was offered by W. O. Davis of Versailles, and M. M. Logan, chairman of the Tax Commission.

The importance of uniformity in assessment was explained by W. O. Davis, of Versailles in an address before the commissioners. Mr. Davis was a member of the 1914 Special Tax Commission and is familiar with the tax laws of this and other states.

The duty of the County Commissioners to the state and to the public, was the subject of a paper submitted by Senator Hite Huffaker, of Louisville.

During the discussion Chairman Logan advised the Tax Commissioners to look out for booze in local option territory.

Most of the state is dry, you know, said Logan, and the taxpayers who like their toddy likely have a barrel or so stored away for private use. The whisky is taxable.

Distillery machinery, Logan said, was worth little more than junk, and should be so assessed, as he added it would likely never be used again for distilling whisky. It was agreed that all property paying taxes to the state must be assessed at 100 per cent and other property this year will be assessed at 80 per cent of its fair cash value.

Letters were sent to the County Judges today by the State Tax Commission, directing them to prepare an office and furnish it for each County Tax Commission.

GARRETT.

The community was shocked last Monday at the news of the death at Wayland hospital of W. J. McGuigan, a true and trusted payroll clerk in the employ of the Elkhorn Coal Corporation. He was in charge of the office at this place when taken sick, 10 days previous to his death. His home was in Pittsburgh. He came here nearly a year ago, made many friends while here, was open-hearted, broad-minded, kind, genial, loved by all. His only sister, Mrs. DeLozier, was with him at the last. Everything was done that human skill could do, but to no avail. The remains were taken to Pittsburgh for interment. Much sympathy is extended to the bereaved. His position in the office here will be difficult to fill.

Rev. C. L. Neff and wife were called to Beaver Creek last Saturday by the serious illness of Mrs. Neff's mother, who remains at this writing so seriously ill that no hope of recovery is entertained and in consequence of his absence there were no services held here last Sunday.

Linden Brode has been called to the agency. He and his wife with their belongings left Saturday of last week. They are such splendid people that their absence is greatly felt.

Mr. Schwab and his merry-go-round were the chief entertainers here this week. The hilarity of the children and the music of the machine extended far into the night each evening.

Bryan Stanley, a young man from Jenkins, who has been laboring here for some months past, left last Monday for home to prepare for his departure to the army July 8. He is a splendid fellow and will make a good soldier.

Judge Jay Vinson and family were the Sunday guests of Lack Martin and family.

Mrs. B. J. Breckenridge was an afternoon guest of Mrs. Carter Tuesday.

Mrs. T. E. Mullins left Monday for her home at Virgie, Pike county.

John Wolfe, who has been sick for some days, has so far recovered as to be able to resume his work in the mines.

Mrs. Jake Petry left for a visit last week to her father's home at Coalton. Jake expects to join her the second week in July.

Joe Shoeft and wife, of Basco, were shopping in Garrett Tuesday.

Drilling is in slow progress just now on Uncle Can Estep's farm owing to the tools being hung in the well. A fishing set had to be secured before they could continue.

In our drive for War Savings Stamp campaign, Garrett came to the front with the magnificent sum of $26,565. But Garrett is always in the lead.

BLAINE.

Mr. and Mrs. Mathew Bates were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Osborn Sunday evening.

G. V. Burton is very ill with appendicitis.

Miss Mary E. Evans has returned to Louisa.

The Union Oil and Gas Company have struck a paying oil well on Oscar Skaggs' farm on Laurel. They have drilled 45 feet in the oil sand and not through yet.
